The Rabbi's Ruminations

Why I have gone to Israel as a War Unfolds

By the time this article is published, I will likely be in Israel with our Temple Board President, Avital Anders. Our congregation has already raised over $27,000 to rescue its residents during this painful time of need, where entire cities have been evacuated, 1400 were murdered, over 200 were taken hostage, and over 3000 were wounded by Hamas terrorists. You are of course invited to contribute as well: www.tinyurl.com/For-Israel.

This is not simply another country; for Jews worldwide, it embodies the aspirations of Jews worldwide, and we will do our part to protect it.

My parents met in the labor Zionist camping movement of the post-Holocaust late forties, both of them committed to creating not only a Jewish refuge; Israel would serve as an "Or L'goyim," a "Light unto the nations" (cf. Isaiah 42:6, 49:6, and 60:3). Not only a place where Jews could live unmolested as Israel's national anthem "Hatikvah" suggests, "to be a free nation in our land;" they would help establish the best possible nation in the world, where "justice rolls down like water," where poverty doesn't exist, a nation of immigrants devoted to the betterment of the planet, a utopian society dedicated to ending all genocides, all massacres, all bloodshed. In short, heaven on earth.

My dad was the camp truck driver, my mother a mere camper child, six years apart in age. My father had been discharged from the Navy a few years earlier; he joined to stop the calamity that would leave 6 million Jews murdered—55 million humans. A bright-eyed idealist, he eyed my mother at camp, and six months later, they started a family. My parents never had a lot of money, so it took until I went to Jerusalem for my year of study in 1992 to become a rabbi, 44 years after modern Israel's birth. It was the fulfillment of a lifelong dream, to see this refuge for the Jewish people, an "oasis for liberty," cultivated into a place where the Chalutzim ("pioneers") made the desert bloom. I dragged them all over the country; here's some notable offbeat places that changed us:

- Beit Ticho in Jerusalem, where master Russian Olim (immigrants) performed classical music. We saw a virtuoso pianist masterfully performed Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody #2.
- Hadassah Hospital in Ein Kerem, where French artist Marc Chagall's extraordinary windows reside, perhaps the most beautiful stained-glass windows in history. Needlepoint versions adorn a wall at Temple Beth El.

- Kibbutz Lochamei HaGeta'ot in northwest Israel, founded by Holocaust Warsaw Ghetto Uprising fighters, which contains a museum filled with imagery and sounds of the vibrant life of pre-war Europe. I'll never forget my dad's tears—a rare sight—as he gazed at the expression of both what was and what became Jewish reality, the devastation of the Jewish thirst for justice.
- Achzivland, a bizarre self-proclaimed nation-state of “Prime Minister” Eli Avivi located a couple of miles north of Nahariya. Avivi personally stamped our passports with his strange micronation stamp...my parents loved that this eccentric Iranian immigrant had built this little fiefdom, a peculiar expression of the creativity that is quite typical of the ingenuity of the Jewish people when given an opportunity to express itself. As the first Israeli Prime Minister David Ben Gurion once famously said, “When Israel has prostitutes and thieves, we'll be a state just like any other.” That a lunatic singlehandedly created a micronation within Israel—that was showcased by the ministry of tourism—suggests a joie-de-vivre by Israelis who have drained swamps, invented critical technologies, and indeed established “a Light unto the nations.”

All of this and more is threatened by Hamas, Iran, and a world that with kneejerk pace returns to an underlying hatred of Jews, Jewish contributions to a better world (less than 0.1% of the world population has earned 15% of the Nobel prizes? Unbelievable), and our inherent right to exist.

The situation is dire. Sunni-led Hamas (which started as an armed force within the Egyptian resistance movement and thus is hated by Egypt's leadership) has built a massive network of underground tunnels—bunkers—within the boundaries of Gaza since Israel unilaterally withdrew its occupation in 2005. Meanwhile, in the north, Shiite-led Hezbollah has massive arsenals of weapons, thanks to its Iranian suppliers, their global ambition (stated by the Ayatollah in 1979 and ever since) to destroy the Jewish state. There is little preventing Iran's minions—and Iran itself—from simultaneously attacking Israel. October 7th was the most murderous day for Jews since the Holocaust, but there's every reason to believe that the worst is yet to come. Any day now.

So why am I going to Israel in the middle of such a volatile moment? The answer is simple: My life is tied to the fate of the Jewish people. It is what I signed up for when I became a rabbi. It was a fate established by my Zionist parents and grandparents' belief that Israel was central to their destiny. It's my father's legacy that I have been raising money, it's my mother's legacy that the multitudinous expressions of Jewish culture expressed in Israel is worth my contribution.

I am mad that Israel's Prime Minister left Israel vulnerable to these wretched civilian killers hellbent to maim and murder Jews. I am infuriated that Israelis are forced to protect Israel when its government failed to do so. I am enraged that Hamas intentionally embeds itself in civilian populations and steals fuel and other resources from their families, demonstrating their truly evil disregard of even their own mothers and children. I am resentful of the fact that Israelis will likely engage in a ground war that will litter Gaza with dead Palestinians as well as dead Israelis.

As I go to my ancestral homeland, volunteering during these maddening days, I know there are dangers, and yet there's things more important to me than my comfort. Israel MUST exist. If only others understood why this sole Jewish-dominated nation-state of less than 10 million surrounded by 400 million Arabs (1.8 billion Muslims) must survive, perhaps they would volunteer as well.

“My heart is in the east, and I am in the furthestmost west” (Yehuda Halevi, 12th Century)

A Greeting from Our President

Shalom Friends who are my family,
SO much has happened in October...

Our Jewish world is unified as we stand strong in the face of hatred, brutality and inexplicable antisemitism. I am in Israel on a short trip with Rabbi Klein. The trip is a demonstration of our commitment to our brothers and sisters, to our people and our land. We are set to volunteer on an organic farm associated with a kibbutz in southern Israel that was impacted by the horrific crimes of October 7. We will spend time with friends and I will hug my family in person. Through Temple Beth El we raised over $26,000 in support of Israel. We will continue to distribute funds in the near future. Shout out to our religious school kids who wrote letters to the soldiers that we are taking with us.

Hope we root out evil quickly and with minimal casualties. May November be a quiet and peaceful month.

We are gearing up to the signature events of December. The Latke Brunch will be on December 3rd. This year will include the return of performances by our religious school kids. Be sure to enjoy warm latkes in person and marvel at our young ones. The Krazy 8K will take place December 10th. It gets better and funner (I know that's not a word) every year. Looking forward to continuing to share the light that is Temple Beth El.
